One type of trafficking is human trafficking. Criminals buy and sell human beings. Such trafficking is an example of modern slavery. Every year about 700,000 people, mostly women and children, are trafficked across national borders. That does not include millions trafficked within their own countries. Victims of human trafficking lose their freedom and their rights. Many are forced to work as laborers. Women or kids may be forced to be prostitutes. They may be forced to be domestic workers. Trafficking may be run by mafia. Victims are often abused or killed. Sadly, human trafficking is one of the fastest growing criminal activities in the world.
